Dr. Svetlana Broz
Cardiologist, Author and Lecturer

Choices People Make in Wartime: The War in Bosnia and Its Aftermath

Tuesday, October 16, 2007
4:15 p.m. to 6:00 p.m.
CISAC Central Conference Room, Encina Hall 2nd Floor
Stanford University

Dr. Svetlana Broz is a cardiologist, author and lecturer. She was born in Belgrade in 1955 as the youngest child of Zarko Broz (eldest son of Josip Broz Tito) and Dr. Zlata Jelinek - Broz. In 2001 she became President of the Board of The First Children's Embassy in the World, the Director of the Sarajevo office of the NGO Gardens of the Righteous Worldwide and President of the Sarajevo City Government's Steering Committee for the Garden of the Righteous. In 2001 Dr. Broz became an International Advisor of Conflict Management Group in Cambridge, Massachusetts. Dr. Broz is the author of several books including, Good People in an Evil Time, and Having What it Takes: Essays on Civil Courage.

To RSVP go to: http://fce.stanford.edu/events/5063/

Presented by the Forum on Contemporary Europe and the Center for Russian, East European and Eurasian Studies (CREEES).